

NABAL KISHORE PANDE

Independent Researcher · Author

Decision Systems • Research Frameworks • Execution Intelligence • Scholarship Preparation Intelligence

Pithoragarh · Uttarakhand · India

□ About the Work

I work as an independent researcher and author from Pithoragarh, Uttarakhand, building structured methodologies that help people move from assumption to evidence. My core interest lies at the meeting point of four fields — Decision Systems, Research Frameworks, Execution Intelligence, and Scholarship Preparation Intelligence — and the aim across all of them is the same: give individuals and organisations a defensible basis for the decisions they make.

My output isn't built around standalone articles or opinion pieces. Each project is meant to be reusable — a framework, an operating system, a dataset, or an execution model that someone can pick up and apply. Complex problems get simplified through structured reasoning, transparent evidence, and processes that can be repeated rather than reinvented each time.

Research interests

- Decision Systems and Strategic Reasoning
- Research Frameworks and Knowledge Architecture
- Execution Intelligence and Practical Implementation
- Scholarship Preparation Intelligence
- Professional Portability and Career Development
- Open Research, Knowledge Sharing, and Evidence-Based Publishing

Everything I publish — whether it's a book, a framework, or a smaller digital resource — feeds into one continuing body of work aimed at improving decision quality, reducing uncertainty, and supporting learning that stays open and accessible over time.

Open Research Infrastructure

Research holds its value only when it stays transparent, easy to find, and open to revision. That's why I keep my work distributed across established scholarly platforms — so readers, researchers, educators, and practitioners can reach my publications, datasets, and working papers from whichever source they trust most.

|                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| ORCID — IdentityA persistent researcher identity that keeps my publications correctly attributed across academic and publishing platforms.ORCID Profile | GitHub — CodeWhere I host research resources, structured documentation, datasets, and reproducible project files that support my published work.GitHub |
| Zenodo — ResearchLong-term archive for my research outputs, datasets, and publications, with permanent citation support built in.Zenodo                 | OSF — ProjectsHome for organising research projects and working materials in line with open, reproducible science practices.OSF                        |

Together, these four platforms are the backbone of my open research infrastructure — keeping the work accessible, verifiable, and reusable for anyone in the global research community who wants to build on it.

Published Works

My published titles cover practical education, professional development, decision-making, and applied learning, and each one is written to solve a real problem rather than debate theory. Selected works are indexed on WorldCat, which puts them in front of libraries and academic institutions around the world.

DIY Home Improvement: Transform Your Space on a Budget

Publisher: Scribl

Publication Date: 4 September 2024

Language: English

ISBN: 9781633486157 / 163348615X

OCLC Number: 1482654705

WorldCat Listing

This guide is currently held by 13 libraries worldwide, reflecting its reach across international library networks. Representative holdings include:

Representative library holdings

- Universität Marburg, Universitätsbibliothek — Marburg/Lahn, Germany
- University of Arts in Belgrade, Faculty of Music — Belgrade, Serbia
- Askews and Holts Library Services Ltd — Preston, Lancashire, United Kingdom
- Ebook Library — Claremont, Western Australia, Australia

Being catalogued across these networks helps keep the book discoverable for readers, researchers, and educational institutions well beyond its first release.

Academic Word Engine: EF SET, CEFR, IELTS, PTE, DET, OET & TOEFL Mastery for Global Career Mobility

Publisher: A+ TEST SUCCESS

Publication Date: 6 December 2025

Language: English

ISBN: 9789334380378 / 9334380373

OCLC Number: 1563979749

WorldCat Listing

Built for students and professionals preparing for international education and career moves, this book brings several English-proficiency frameworks together into one structured resource. It's currently indexed in 1 library through WorldCat, giving it an additional route for academic discovery.

These two titles are only part of a larger effort to build practical knowledge resources that combine research, structured learning, and real-world application.

Books, Frameworks & Decision Resources

Research that doesn't change a real decision isn't doing its job. The books, frameworks, and digital resources listed here are built to close the gap between theory and execution, giving readers structured systems they can put to use straight away. Instead of generic advice, each one takes on a specific decision challenge and backs it with a practical model, a repeatable workflow, and evidence-based reasoning.

Scholarship Intelligence Compass (Free Resource)

An entry point for prospective international scholarship applicants — it lays out the fundamentals of evidence-based preparation, draws the line between preparation and opportunity hunting, and introduces the core principles of Scholarship Preparation Intelligence.

Access the free resource.

The Selection Blueprint 2027

A structured preparation system for applicants going after fully funded Master's scholarships, built around strategic planning, readiness assessment, and opportunity evaluation — the opposite of scattershot applications.

Explore the blueprint

Scholarship Intelligence Library (Live Membership)

A continuously expanding digital platform bringing together research articles, practical frameworks, preparation guides, decision tools, templates, datasets, and implementation resources — for applicants who want a systematic approach backed by evidence that keeps updating.

Become a member

The Executive Decision Defense Playbook: Doctrine, Structures, and Reasoning Systems for Defensible Executive Judgment

A framework for improving executive decision-making through structured reasoning and decision architecture, aimed at leaders, researchers, managers, and consultants who need to justify high-stakes decisions under uncertainty.

Learn more

The ASA System: The Operating System for Professional Portability

An operating framework for reducing career dependency and building professional portability, with actionable strategies for anyone working toward greater career flexibility through transferable skills and independent capability.

Learn more

Taken together, this set of publications reflects a single commitment — turning research into decision infrastructure that readers can put to work immediately, whether the context is professional development, executive decision-making, or international scholarship preparation.

Research Archives & Scholarly Collections

Knowledge should stay discoverable and reusable long after a single publication goes out of print. I keep several scholarly repositories running for exactly that reason, archiving research outputs, presentations, and supporting materials so readers can explore both finished and evolving work in one structured place.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Academia.eduCentral home for my academic writing, research papers, and working documents, where researchers, educators, and students can follow ongoing work in decision systems, research frameworks, execution intelligence, and scholarship preparation.Academia.edu | Internet ArchiveSelected publications and digital resources preserved here for the long run, through one of the world's largest open digital libraries.Internet Archive |
| SlideShareVisual summaries, presentation decks, and diagrams that translate written frameworks into a format learners and professionals can take in quickly.SlideShare                                                                                                  |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

These three repositories add up to more visibility, better preservation, and easier access for the research overall — an essential part of the ecosystem around everything I publish.

Funded Abroad India

Funded Abroad India is a long-term research and publishing initiative built around advancing Scholarship Preparation Intelligence through evidence-based resources and practical execution systems. It isn't a scholarship listing site — it's a knowledge ecosystem where research turns into actionable guidance for students chasing fully funded international education.

The idea behind it is simple: better preparation leads to better decisions. Every article, framework, checklist, and digital resource is meant to help applicants evaluate opportunities more carefully, prepare systematically, and cut down the uncertainty that runs through most scholarship journeys.

|                                                                                                                                                                                            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Project HubAn overview of my research philosophy, publications, decision systems, and ongoing initiatives — the central gateway into everything else.Project Hub | Official BlogThe main publishing platform for long-form articles, research insights, and preparation guides — written to stay relevant beyond any single application cycle.Official Blog |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

Funded Abroad India keeps producing decision frameworks, preparation methodologies, and research-driven learning systems. The goal was never just to help applicants find scholarships — it's to help them become better decision-makers who can evaluate an opportunity with confidence and clarity.

Connect

Research has more impact when it's shared openly and discussed across different communities, so I stay active on a mix of professional, academic, and social publishing platforms. Each one plays a distinct role, and together they let readers, researchers, students, and professionals engage with the work in whichever format suits them.

Professional

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                              |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| My primary professional profile — publication updates, research initiatives, and thought leadership across decision systems, research frameworks, execution intelligence, and scholarship preparation.LinkedIn | Research articles, analytical essays, and practical insights that go deeper into decision-making, scholarship preparation, and evidence-based learning.Medium |
| Academic writing and scholarly publications, for researchers and students following the work in depth.Academia                                                                                                 | Research resources, structured documentation, and datasets that support the published work.GitHub                                                             |

Social

|                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Visual glimpses into publications, research activity, and the broader professional journey.Instagram                           | Reaches a wider audience interested in international education, scholarship preparation, and structured learning resources.Facebook |
| Concise research observations, publication updates, and discussion on emerging ideas.Bluesky                                   | Conversations on research, decision systems, and scholarship intelligence, alongside updates on new publications and projects.X     |
| An additional publishing space for educational content, announcements, and supporting material tied to ongoing research.Tumblr |                                                                                                                                                    |

|            |                            |                   |                                |                              |
|------------|----------------------------|-------------------|--------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 2Books | 4ResearchPlatforms | 3Repositories | 5Frameworks& Resources | 14LibrariesWorldwide |
|------------|----------------------------|-------------------|--------------------------------|------------------------------|

Looking Ahead

What drives all of this is a long-term commitment to building decision infrastructure, not just publishing information. Across books, research papers, datasets, frameworks, repositories, and digital communities, the aim stays the same — resources that remain useful, transparent, and evidence-based.

If you're a researcher, educator, policymaker, professional, or an aspiring international student, this interconnected ecosystem is open to you. Explore it, engage with the research, and add to a growing body of practical work built around better decisions, stronger execution, and lifelong learning.

Building practical decision infrastructure through research, structured reasoning, and open knowledge.

Nabal Kishore Pande

